

March 24, 2014

Dear Representative:

On behalf of the undersigned organizations and our millions of members across the country, we strongly support the Antiquities Act and urge you to oppose H.R. 1459, which would undermine Presidential authority under the Antiquities Act to act swiftly to protect iconic historical, cultural, and natural sites that are the fabric of who we are as Americans.

H.R. 1459 would place numeric limitations on how many places could be designated in a given presidential term. Most recently, the Antiquities Act has been used to protect vast ocean resources, a contemporary American Latino leader – the revered César Chávez – and important wildlife habitat in the West. Since President Teddy Roosevelt pushed for the passage of the Antiquities Act, it has been used on a bipartisan basis by 16 Presidents (8 Republicans and 8 Democrats) to protect America's most iconic natural, cultural, and historic places: the Grand Canyon, Statue of Liberty, Fort Pulaski, Acadia, Zion and Olympic National Parks. Half of our National Parks were originally protected using the Antiquities Act.

The Antiquities Act properly balances legislative and executive powers. While granting to the President the authority to take swift action to protect significant, historic, and scenic objects on federal lands, it leaves undisturbed Congress' authority to declare monuments, to determine the level of resources for the management and maintenance of presidentially proclaimed national monuments, and to re-designate any monument as a national park or other federal reserve.

National Monuments and public lands are an essential part of state and local economies. A 2013 poll by Colorado College found that 74% of Westerners see protected public lands as a job creator in their state. The ten broadly supported national monument designations over the past two years have already had a tangible impact on the surrounding communities. Most recently, following the March 2013 designation of the Rio Grande Del Norte National Monument, data from the New Mexico Green Chamber of Commerce found that the designation increased the town of Taos' lodgers tax revenue by 21% and revenue in Taos county from accommodations and food services increased by $3.7 million in the second half of 2013, over the same period of 2012.

Efforts to prevent and undermine the protection of our lands and waters are out of step with public opinion, where there is overwhelming support for managing our country's public lands and waters in a way that will sustain local economies, enhance quality of life for our children and protect our rich conservation legacy.

For these reasons we urge you to oppose H.R. 1459.

Sincerely,
